

E-Safety

One of the most common forms of digital device misuse is Cyberbullying. This form of bullying usually occurs via social media, text, instant messaging or Email. What is most concerning is the persistent nature of the attacks, which usually aim at causing embarrassment or humiliation. Whilst cyberbullying itself is not against the law, harassment and threatening behaviour is.

At The Marches students annually take part in the national Safer Internet Day which aims at educating students on how to “use technology responsibly, respectfully, critically and creatively”. As part of the curriculum ICT lessons are delivered on e-safety, which educates youngsters on safe Internet use and the steps to take if they feel unsafe or become a target of a cyberbully.

For a full guide on Cyberbullying and methods of prevention click here.